

Occasional Paper - 1

from

The Library

at

Raj Bhavan, Kolkata

12 August 2006

With this first Occasional Paper we hope to start a series. Not being a periodical or journal, the OP will have no fixed periodicity. Each OP will be based on the library's holdings, directly or indirectly. The views expressed in its columns will, needless to say, reflect the thinking of the distinguished writers', not that of the library, which is not meant to opionate.

If this library ever had a system of aquiring, accessioning and cataloguing books, it has long since ceased. We are now building an accession list and are digitising some of the older volumes and restoring them. For reasons that should be manifest, the library at Raj Bhavan does not offer unregulated access. Occasional Papers based on its shelves will, to an extent, provide an approximation to its volumes for scholars.